Founder and Research Director

Tech4Care (www.tech4care.it) is a dynamic Italian start-up, seeking to innovate the ways that frail older people are cared for today, by using new technological and healthcare professional approaches. Tech4Care has a specific competence and focus on older people with Alzheimer's Disease and other dementias. It provides tailored packages of assistive technologies for independent living, security and monitoring, as well as professional home care and management. My role within T4C relates to the definition of research priorities, to ensure T4C participation to EU and national calls for grant, but I am also directly involved in research activities in the area of home care and technologies.
